

A man in traditional Peruvian Inca attire, including a red and black patterned poncho and a matching hat, is pointing towards a large stone wall. Two tourists, a woman with long blonde hair wearing a green jacket and a beige scarf, and a man with a beard wearing a dark jacket, are listening to him. They are standing in a courtyard with a long building featuring a series of arches in the background.

A man and a woman, dressed in outdoor gear, are standing in a dark, rocky cave. They are looking towards a local guide on the right, who is wearing traditional Peruvian attire, including a red and black patterned poncho and a headband with a cross. The guide is gesturing with his hands as he speaks. A bright beam of light enters the cave from an opening above, illuminating the scene.
